For medical practitioners

The Job Forum provides a unique venue for job seekers to meet a large number of prospective employers, and get first-hand experience in talking informally with CEOs, CMOs, COOs and other providers.

For health care providers

The Job Forum gives health care providers the rare opportunity to have access to groups of potential job candidates and prospective applicants; and offers great networking possibilities.

Format

We offer open panel sessions, where speakers from health providers introduce themselves and their organization to job seekers. Job seekers can ask questions, to get some idea of the different work cultures and types of medical practice and get to know panel speakers. A final afternoon reception allows all job seekers, panel speakers and other attendees to mingle and interact.

Tele-recruitment facility

The Job Forum also offers a 'tele-recruitment' facility for those job seekers who are unable to attend in person. The tele-recruitment facility gives job seekers the chance to view panel discussions and ask questions to panel speakers.
